? ? The Community Foundation of Southern Indiana has selected the new members of its Youth Philanthropy Councils. There is one council for each of the three counties the Community Foundation serves - one each in Clark, Floyd, and Harrison counties. Each council has teen and adult members who oversee a service project, receive and award grants and help organize the annual Gold Acorn Youth Volunteer Celebration, which honors teen volunteers each Spring.

Shawna Sipes, who was recently hired as the coordinator for the councils by CFSI, helped gather names and process applications for the councils.

“The Councils are designed to teach how philanthropy works to teens who aren’t familiar with charitable organizations,” said Melissa Harbeson, program officer for the Community Foundation of Southern Indiana. “What we hope that then teens learn is how non-profit organizations work and how they can help make a difference, even at a young age. What we hope to do is plant a seed that will be with them the rest of their lives.”
