Washington County Coroner Rondale Brishaber and the Salem Police Department are investigating the death of a 16-year-old Salem High School student.

Brishaber said the death of Nathan Stidham, 16, is still under investigation and details of how the young man died won't be officially released until later this week.

"I had heard several different names and we wanted to end public speculation on who it was," Brishaber said.

Stidham's body was found at 505 North High Street in Salem.
