

County Council avoids layoffs to address Budget shortfall

Written by George Browning
Wednesday, 06 February 2013 09:48 -

It took the better part of two full-day meetings, but the Washington County Council came up with a plan to cut $329,000 out of the 2013 budget.

In the end, the council went through the budget line item, by line item and took money from a number of departments.

The remainder of the shortfall came from eliminating county employee's longevity pay.

All county employees receive a bonus for the number of years they have served.

The minimum for one year of service is $60 but the maximum is $1,200.

For this year only, county employees will not receive that money.

See rest of the story in the Feb. 13 issue of The Washington County Edition.